

Peoria Audubon Society

Since 1931, birds have been the primary focus of the Peoria Audubon Society. Through the years, Peoria Audubon has also maintained an ongoing commitment to preserving habitat for birds and other wildlife. In 1980, Peoria Audubon became a chapter of the National Audubon Society, broadening its resources for bird conservation.

By conducting local bird counts, Peoria Audubon works to ensure that decision-makers have reliable information about the birds of Central Illinois. Through advocacy and public education, Peoria Audubon provides a voice for birds in local, state, and national policy discussions. Through its sanctuary initiative, Peoria Audubon Society is working to safeguard bird habitat and provide high quality public birdwatching opportunities in Central Illinois.
